Originally designed by William W. Wurster who apprenticed under Frank Lloyd Wright, this Dwell-inspired compound offers an additional, highly stylized in-law apartment, detached writer's office, and a sizable flex building perfect as a gym, workshop, or studio. Walls of glass look out over San Francisco Bay views gently framed by majestic Redwoods. Glass doors flow directly onto the patio, ideal for summer meals, evenings of entertaining, or for soaking in the luxurious new hot tub. A sleek industrial staircase forged of wood and steel leads you to the upper level comprised of a bedroom, bathrooms, and a zen like primary suite with loft area and french doors opening to bay and city views. This level lot sanctuary surrounded by Redwood and Oak trees promises to delight from sunrise to dramatic sunset.
